

PORTO RICAN CANNOT VOTE.

Justice Freedman Denies
Frank Juarbe's Writ of Mandamus.

NOT A CITIZEN OF U. S.

Ground Taken That Congress
Has Not Yet Been Heard From.

The application in behalf of Frank Juarbe, the Porto Rican, for a writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Inspectors of the Twenty-fourth Election District of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, to register him as a voter, was denied today by Justice Freedman in the Supreme Court.

The claim was made that Juarbe became a citizen of the United States when sovereignty over Porto Rico was ceded to the United States by Spain. Juarbe has lived in New York State more than a year and in the county and the Twenty-fifth Assembly District required time to entitle him to register.

Corporation Counsel Whalen opposed the writ on the ground that by the treaty the political and civil status of the Porto Ricans was left to be decided by Congress and that Congress has not yet acted.

Justice Freedman denied the writ on the ground taken by the Corporation Counsel.

ODELL DENIES LABOR STORY.

Declares Republicans Did Not Bribe Union
Delegates.

"That is an old story, thoroughly exposed at the time. There is not a word of truth in it," said Chairman Odell, of the Republican State Committee, today when a report of the action of the Central Federated Union suspending Delegate Charles Wilson pending an investigation of the charges that he and the Democratic Patrick J. Daly had accepted money from the Republican State Committee for using their influence to prevent the Workingmen's State Federation from making a report hostile to the Republican Legislature and backlisting certain Republican Senators and Assemblymen.

Deputy Michael Kelly, formerly Secretary of District Assembly No. 23, preferred the charges in an affidavit in which he alleges that Chairman William Barnes, Jr., of the State Executive Committee, actually paid $500 on account to Wilson, Daly and himself, and promised to pay $500 more after the thing was done.

Kelly didn't go to the convention, and he hadn't earned his share.

Wilson, Daly and himself, before the Central Federated Union at its yesterday's meeting, went on to say that the Union and the Barnes and Weinheimer, happening to pass the Fifth Avenue Hotel and glancing into the windows of the Republican State Committee rooms, saw Delegates Wilson and P. J. Daly there in Mr. Odell's room, and they saw something that looked like a check in their hands.

Chairman Barnes, who is credited with paying the money to Wilson and P. J. Daly, is in Albany today. Mr. Odell would not discuss the matter beyond the fact that the investigation of the story as "a lie from the beginning to the end."

OUT AGAINST STANCHFIELD.
Building Trades Council Working to Defeat the Candidate.

A document addressed to the workingmen of the State and signed by the accredited representatives of the Building Trades Council, calling for the defeat of John B. Stanchfield, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is being circulated.

The claim is made that Stanchfield is an enemy of labor and that he is on record in the Stoughton County courts as defending a certain labor union a criminal organization.

Another statement is that he was active in behalf of railroad corporations in defeating the Employers' Liability bill in the last Legislature and appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee to oppose it.

As workingmen have been for years trying to get the Employers' Liability bill passed, all are asked to vote against Stanchfield.

NEW BROOKLYN DOCK.

Navy Department Decides to Locate It at the Navy-Yard.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—The Navy Department has decided to locate the new $1,000,000 dry dock at the Brooklyn Navy-Yard between docks One and Two, as recommended by a majority of the Board appointed to select a site.

The minority reported in favor of the old dock.

SILVER DOLLAR WORTH 52C.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Bar silver last week reached 52s. 6d. per ounce, the highest figure since 1896.

This rise was due to purchases by India for coinage purposes, the total purchases since February being the extraordinary sum of 5½ crores ($5,000,000).

Log Broken by Broadway Car.

Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning Samuel Linnetsky, thirty years old, of 515 East Seventy-second street, was struck by a Broadway cable car while crossing Fifty-fourth street and Broadway. His right leg was broken. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Suicide by Gas.

Mandeville Mower, fifty-five years old, of 67 Lexington avenue, was found dead in his room today. The cause of death was apoplexy brought on by gas. The police here is a case of suicide.

SOME BULLS OF THE CAMPAIGN.

BRYAN FAILED TO IMPRESS SAGE.

Great Financier Thinks Him
a Magnetic Orator Who
"Talks Buncombe."

Russell Sage accompanied an Evening World reporter to the Bryan demonstration at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

For five hours he sat amid the din and clamor of the noisy welcome given Mr. Bryan and noted with the keen interest of a great man of affairs the antipathetic features of the great Democratic show.

And when, at 11 o'clock Mr. Sage, a man eighty-four years old, with more than a million dollars to mark each birthday, rose to go, he stepped briskly over the tops of a long row of press seats, allowed two stalwart policemen to lift him over the high fence to the aisle in the rear, and announced that he had enjoyed the experience greatly.

The meeting Saturday night was the first Democratic assembly that Russell Sage ever attended. It was the first time that he had ever seen or heard William J. Bryan, the Democratic candidate for the Presidency.

Was Karger to Hear Bryan. A desire to see and hear him and to get a close range idea of the logic used in the appeal to the country for a change in the administration of national affairs, induced Mr. Sage to brave the discomforts of the crowd at Madison Square Garden.

Thus it happened that Mr. Sage, one of the richest men in the world, one of the most potent factors in the financial and political life of the country, had a man whose large and diversified interests are at odds with many of Mr. Bryan's theories, went to Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

As he sat in the press seat an interested spectator of the many varied incidents, and noticed the flag-bedecked interior of the great hall, Mr. Sage said that it reminded him vividly of a somewhat similar scene in the building nearly twenty years ago.

"I presided at that occasion," said Mr. Sage, glancing toward the speaker's stand with a smile. "It was the first political gathering ever held in Madison Square Garden."

One of the First to Come. To make sure that he would get a seat where he could hear, the aged multimillionaire went to the garden at 10 o'clock, and that he might miss nothing he remained until the close.

As the several speakers of the evening had their turn upon the stage, preceding the real star, Mr. Sage, a life-long Republican, seemed and continued to be interested in the speeches.

RUSSELL SAGE.

But the Wall Street magnate showed no lack of interest. He had a good seat near the speaker's stand where he could see Mr. Sage was studying him intently.

As he spoke he followed with attention the points he made. The Wall Street leader was plainly interested in what the Democratic orator had to say on the trusts, the money question, the Philippines and many other issues which were touched upon by the Democratic candidate.

"If a man thinks it more important to have a gold dollar in his pocket than a Republic over his head, let him vote the Republican ticket," said Mr. Bryan.

This statement was applauded by the audience.

"Mr. Bryan Magnificent," Says Sage.

"Mr. Bryan has considerable personal magnetism," commented Mr. Sage.

"The Democratic party is the conservative party of today," continued Mr. Sage, "while the Republican party is the revolutionary party."

"This is an enthusiastic audience," remarked Mr. Sage as the great throng shouted its acclamation of some point advanced.

A stout built man, with a voice frequently brought to his feet as one man by a sonorous period or a stirring climax.

"Mr. Bryan is certainly an eloquent man," was Mr. Sage's comment. "I am surprised, however, that he should not avail himself of the opportunity, with such a splendid audience as this, to propagate Democratic policies."

"What he is saying is very catchy, but it is not convincing argument."

Bryan Enthusiast Crowd.

Finally came Mr. Bryan. The cheering thousands enthused as if by magic.

It was late and the multimillionaire had passed through an evening of calculation to make away the interest of some young man.

GOSSIP OF POLITICS.

"There is only one week left in which to save the country from destruction at the hands of the party who do not belong to it. Get a move on! That is the way the candidate puts it today."

Charles Adler is the only Republican ever elected to any office in the Eighth, Manhattan. After serving several terms at Albany he refused to run for the Assembly last fall and the district was lost. This year he was induced to be the candidate again.

"You see," said Adler today, "I was out of politics a year and managed to make a little money. So I can afford to go to again this year."

But Martin H. Quigg says Adler is taking the risk to the well this time he is broken.

John Gill, of Franklin, Pa., prohibition candidate for Attorney-General of that State, is at the Fifth Avenue. He says his party will more than hold its own in Pennsylvania, raising many votes for Republicans, who disapprove McKim's army canteen.

"How soon we are forgotten!" This sad reflection of Rip Van Winkle must strike the late President of the Republican County Committee, Lemuel Kilgus, when he reads in the hand of his late official secretary that "Hon. Lemuel H. Kilgus was assigned to speak at Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 3 and Rockaway N. J., Nov. 5."

John A. Henneberry writes to this column to make a correction. He says: "It might not be important if true, but it was not the Republican candidate for Senator against Cantor in the Twenty-first district who was killed in this election on a few days to relieve the city of his responsibilities, but the mail brought a letter shattering that expectation."

Col. Treadwell has but one regret. He has been unable to play golf for some weeks and while it is very agreeable to hold away over the State, still he must sacrifice his golf game.

In addition to a general letter of instruction, several documents were received today from the Governor, including a number of amendments to the City Civil Service rules.

They were the public papers which had been carried over from Friday. These will be the last public matters on which the Governor will be sufficient time to act until after election.

Things that "jar" one: Salvation Army barracks in Harlem now Odell barracks; an exchange of prayers for politics.

Ratifications meetings in Zion Methodist Church.

The German Bryan and Stevenson Club of the Thirtieth Assembly District holds nightly meetings in the old Madison on the Madison Road, Ninety-third street and Third Avenue, where Washington Irving once lived.

Mr. William H. Hall, of Hawthorne, N. Y., Willis, Halleck, Young, Cooper and the rest of the brilliant coterie that used to gather here and discourse with the father of American literature in the old time, Sheriff Grell, Dr. "Alphabetical" Anderson, Alphonse Korbale, "Young" Jake Hopper, Paul T. Hoppe, Seymour Tom Donnelly, Assemblyman Hyman and other celebrities of the Democracy discuss the issues now.

George W. Wamaker, Republican leader in the Fifteenth Assembly District, says:

"We have been holding three meetings every night during October, and we are making more trouble for the Democrats than they have ever had before in this district."

When Capt. P. Upton Goddard abandoned the Good-Gods and reform to go into machine politics, he was a great rush. He began by giving a club-house (furnished) to his east side Republican club, and issued his maiden speech in "Tammany No. 1, No. 2, No. 3, No. 4, No. 5, No. 6, No. 7, No. 8, No. 9, No. 10, No. 11,
